Through the Keyhole

TO BE FOUR-YEARS-OLD is a wonderful thing, or at least it was wonderful to Ann Can-non who reached that age just last Thursday.

Ann, Marie and Gerald Can-non's only child, received her first big party with all the joy and excitement usually reserved for Barnum & Bailey circuses. Weeks before we were all in-formed of the occasion and told details. Consequently we all en-joyed her pleasure to the fullest. Dressed in pink organdy, Ann received her guests but it took the youngsters only a few min-utes to jump into bathing suits and head for the swimming pool. After the dip, the tiny tots were given plates decorated with tug-boats and cowgirl candles, ice cream and cake and wonderful favors to wear and blow.

The guest list included Larry Smith, Donny Taylor, Joel and Hugh Martin, Vandy Vanbar-lum, Freddie Sessions, Cindy and wife Solange. And how interesting chat with Ola B. Ken-drick taught me up on all the news about Brundidge friends. Also the interesting fact that her daughter Mary Will and Jack Dickert are having a love-ly time in Miami, Fla. They are along with their children, Jack and Jill, have been having an extended vacation on the coast. Ola B. and Miss Nettie Flournoy had a grand time on a recent visit to relatives in Gadsden, Fayette and Birmingham. And it seems they were feted in the royal manner while there. Visiting here from Andalusia, a very grown up and handsome Roy Forman. Seen fishing on a sunny afternoon—Donald Know the Stephens had a lux-urious time as they were stay-ing at the Grand Hotel at Point Clear.

Highlight of the Bar Conven-tion was election time and we were quite proud to hear that our friend Charles Byars, at-tempting the presidency of the Ju-nior Bar Association. Charles is married to the lovely Mickey Rhodes, formerly of Tuscaloosa, and sorority sister of ours. I know his term in office will be outstanding.

PERSONAL GLIMPSES: An in-teresting chat with Ola B. Ken-drick taught me up on all the news about Brundidge friends. They are along with their children, Jack and Jill, have been having an extended vacation on the coast. Visiting here from Andalusia, a very grown up and handsome Roy Forman. Seen fishing on a sunny afternoon—Donald Know the Stephens had a lux-urious time as they were stay-ing at the Grand Hotel at Point Clear.

VISITING here from New England were Ben Mathis and his family. And the red car-pet was really put out for them. On July 22, Elizabeth John-son was hostess at a morning party honoring Freida Mathis. The Johnson home was lovely with summer flowers and all the silver was polished to a high lustre. Dainty little sandwiches were served and the conversa-tion never faltered.

There to chat and enjoy a fine July morning were Ida Kin-ney, Irma Warr, Mary Alice Wise, Georgia Mathis, Ora Sew-ell, Georgia Mathis, Gail Step-hens, Mary McCall, Catherine Ca-sey, Gladys Clark, Mary Bell Tatum, Mary Hobbs, Adner Bell, Martin, Doris Pinkard and Catherine Dorsey.

FARM NEWS

State Cotton Acreage Takes Nose Dive

AUBURN—Alabama's rapidly dwindling cotton acreage has taken another nose-dive leaving it at the lowest point in nearly a century.

And weakened King Cotton is expected to give way this year for the first time to livestock products, including poultry and eggs, as the number one money-maker in the state's farm setup.

So says Roy Helms of the API Extension Service. Revealing this information here yesterday, the Extension economist pointed out that for 1955, acreage planned to cotton this year is well under Alabama's already small 1,020,000-acre allotment. Even though farmers planted more of their allotted acreage this year than last, slightly under nine percent of this year's allotment remains unplanted, as compared with 12 1/2 percent just year . . . the drop leaves us with the smallest cotton acreage since 1886. "And we are faced with the prospect that some of our remaining acreage will be lost to the west," he said.

The cotton acreage on most Alabama farms is now so small that growers cannot afford to maintain power equipment. And yet we recognize that efficient production is absolutely necessary for profit under present farming conditions. Helms explained. New farm enterprises that will offset the tremendous cotton losses on most farms are imperative, he said.

It was in this connection that the specialist voted the prediction that livestock and poultry cash farm receipts this year. He emphasized, however, that these enterprises, the major ones available to us here in Alabama, are for replacing lost cotton income are also available to farmers in other areas. Competition is going to be keen, and Alabama farmers will have to achieve efficiency if they are going to stay alive in commercial agriculture. Helms ended.

Cutting, Curing Right Can Help Hay Quality

AUBURN—Hay quality depends on the way the crop is saved as well as on the value of the plants themselves.

Urging livestock owners to save all the high quality hay they can get as insurance against possible feed shortages, API Extension Agronomist J. C. Lowery this week gave several suggestions for improving hay through the proper cutting and curing methods. Cut hay crops when they are ready, he said. Don't allow them to become too dry. The plants are at their most nutritious when they are first ripe. The presence of leaves and green color increases the value of hay as feed.

Once the hay is cut, it should be baled or stored as soon as it is dry enough to keep. Lying in the sun too long will cause the hay to lose Vitamin A as well as other nutrients, Lowery explained. And hard rains falling on dried hay will also lessen its food value.

Freeze Summer Eggs, Save Fall Food Money

Homemakers who freeze eggs now while prices are low may find the stored eggs have doubled in value this fall and winter. According to API Extension Food Preservation Specialist Lavada Curtis, only fresh, uncracked clean eggs should be used for freezing. Whole eggs are stirred until mixed and then frozen in small sealed bags. When yolks are frozen separately, one teaspoon of sugar or one-half teaspoon salt must be added to each six yolks to prevent coagulation of the solids during storage. Egg whites may be frozen just as they are.

Sheep Referendum to Be August 19th

AUBURN—Alabama sheepmen have a big decision to make. On or before Aug. 19, they may decide whether they want to channel a small part of their income payments on wool sold into a nation-wide promotional program. The success or failure of the plan will be determined by the votes of sheep growers here and throughout the nation.

To encourage domestic wool production, the federal government pays growers incentives from import tariff money. If the current referendum is decided favorable, one cent per pound from each of these payments will be turned over to the American sheep industry in all counties.

Hay crops have made good growth, and considerable hay has already been saved. Harvesting of hay has slowed down this past week because of rain. Grain sorghum is in good condition and has made rapid growth. Soybeans are in good condition, although the past week was too wet for field cultivation.

Commercial vegetables such as tomatoes, watermelons, snap beans and sweet corn are in good condition and are now moving to market in volume.

Peanuts have shown considerable improvement, and the crop is in fair to good condition. Leaf spot is doing some damage in Pike County, but the damage is not too extensive.

Livestock are in good condition. Pastures have improved with the recent rains, and are now supplying good grazing in all areas of the State.

Gregory further stated that approval of the plan would give the American sheep industry its first opportunity to adequately advertise its products. Synthetic fibers that compete with wool are highly advertised, although wool has some very desirable characteristics that have not been duplicated synthetically," he said. "And, thousands of persons in the U. S. have never tasted lamb meat or have gotten a bad impression of it through eating inferior products that were badly cooked. This promotion plan will give sheepmen a chance to tell the public how really delicious and nutritious lamb can be."

Ed Jones, well-known Elba Negro man, shot and fatally wounded his wife, Ethel Williams, then attempted to take his own life by shooting himself in the head Wednesday afternoon. The tragedy occurred at the Colored Baptist Church.

It is said that persons living nearby heard the couple quarreling and then heard two shots ring out. The woman was struck one time, the bullet entering just over her heart. She died a few hours later. After shooting his wife, Williams placed the gun to his head and fired. The bullet entered the back part of his head. It is not believed that the wound will prove fatal.

Aaron Youngblood, one of Coffee County's best colored farmers, brought to the Clipper office Monday morning the first open bolls of cotton of the 1955 season. They came from the W. B. Perdue place, just west of Elba, and are fine specimens of the heavy staple. Aaron said he has a pretty fair crop, considering the small amount of fertilizer used and the excessive rains that fell a few weeks ago.

SOMETHING NEW!

Latest word in hair styles is a "chignon" with a ray little cotton "hat" band. The girl who has short hair doesn't have to worry if she wants a sophisticated chignon hair-do. She can just go out and buy a chignon of hair to match her own with a cotton hat band to suit her fancy. The chignon and cotton band are designed by Joseph Blescher.
